Shaping the Future of Quantitative Drug Development

The International Conference on Pharmacometrics, India (ICoP India 2026), hosted by the Society of Pharmacometrics and Health Analytics (SOPHAS), organized by the Centre for Pharmacometrics, MAHE, and supported by the International Society of Pharmacometrics (ISoP), returns for its second annual edition from January 28–31, 2026, in Manipal, India. Building on the success of ICoP India 2025, this year's conference is themed "Quantitative Approaches in Drug Development: A Path Forward", emphasizing India's critical role in advancing model-informed drug development and regulatory science.

ICoP India 2026 will bring together a vibrant mix of scientists, clinicians, pharmacometricians, regulators, biostatisticians, students, and industry experts from India and around the world. Key focus areas include bioequivalence and biosimilar assessment, PBPK modeling, model-based meta-analysis, AI and machine learning in drug development, and evidence generation for regulatory decision-making.

With dedicated sessions on mentorship, student support, and career development, ICoP India 2026 also invests in building India's next generation of leaders in quantitative sciences. The conference is designed to spark scientific dialogue, strategic partnerships, and translational impact that will drive innovation in healthcare and pharmaceutical development.

The main conference (Jan 29–30) will take place at the elegant Fortune Valley View, Manipal, while the pre-conference workshop (Jan 28) and post-conference workshop (Jan 31) will be hosted at nearby academic venues. Together, these events will provide a platform for immersive learning, collaborative exchange, and real-world application of cutting-edge pharmacometric approaches.
